Lost on His Gold .- About one year ago, Capt. Dillon sent to Lieut. Melvin Richards, of Battery D, and at that time a prisoner at Charleston, S. C., a box containing sundry articles of clothing, provisions, pens, paper, &c. He also placed in the box some gold coin, to enable Lieut. Richards to make such purchases as his necessities might require. About the time the box reached its destination, communication by flag of truce was suspended, and the box was not delivered. In the meantime the Lieutenant was removed meantime the Lieutenant was removed to the interior, and, eventually, exchanged. Upon reaching home it was ascertained that the box had not been received by him, and inquiries instituted to ascertain what disposition had been made of it, which resulted in having the box returned to Mr. Dillon, with all its contents asfe and in good order. It had remained at Charleston until the order was received for its return. At the time it was sent, gold was selling at 250, but has depreciated until at the present time it is only worth 140. In the articles of merchandise there is but little change in their value. The loss on them is very trifling compared with that on the coin, and the following questions are involved: its. Does gold depreciate more in value than articles of merchandise; and, 2d, who is responsible for the loss sustained by the non delivery of the box to Lieut. Richards.

CROWDED STREETS AND FASHIONA-BLE ATTRE .- Our streets present a very lively appearance at the present time, being continually thronged with pedestrians, the larger portion of them wearing the uniform of the United States. A great many of these persons have called in at the clothing stores and exchanged greenbacks for suits of cit-izens' clothing, but as yet we see no exchanged greenbacks for suits of citizens' clothing, but as yet we see no diminution in the numbers of those who wear the army blue, and which is still the prevailing style, and one which has maintained its place in the fashionable world for a longer period than any heretofore introduced into this country. For a considerable period there was a violent opposition to this style of dress by a large portion of the citizens of the United States, who endeavored in every conceivable manner to bring it and its wearers into disrepute. They even carried their opposition so far that those who appeared in that costume had to run the risk of having their clothing perforated with musket balls and bomb shells. But those who donned it proved equal to the emergency, and finally succeeded in establishing its respectability, and making it immensely popular throughout the entire country. Having accomplished all this they are gradually yielding to the desire for change, and are putting on different apprarel, but they will ever remember with pride their success in establishing the style of the Army Blue.

A MULE SPECULATION THAT DIDN'T PAY.—The Pittsburg Gazette says: Dur-ing the last two weeks about one thousand army wagons drawn by mules, have passed through the neighboring of the town. Some very enterprising citizens of that place concluded to avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded to procure a few mules for their own use. Accordingly some eighteen or twenty were obtained by various persons in the borough and vicinity, some taking more and some less. Just how they were procured we are unable to say; but we will presume they were purchased from some unauthorized persons. During the early part of this week some of the Government officials having missed their mules after leaving town, and suspecting all was not right, returned and made search, finding upwards of a dozen snugly haltered up and properly taken care of in various places in the town and vicinity. The persons in whose possession they were found, not being able to show that they had obtained them in the regular way, had of course to give them up and loss whatever money they paid to the drivers from whom they paid to the drivers from whom they purchased, knowing that they had no understant they had obtained them in the regular way, had of course to give them up and loss whatever money they paid to the drivers from whom they paid to the drivers from whom they authority to sell them.
